Short Bio

N.P. Thompson creates web things by day and writes magical middle grade books by night. She is the author of River of Crows, Mirror of Wolves, and Stone of Serpents. She lives in Ottawa, Canada with her two awesome kids and a very lazy cat.

Long Bio

N.P. Thompson once had a goal of reading every single book in her elementary school library. She was the kid who never went anywhere without at least one paperback tucked away in her bag and she wrote her first story, a fanfic based on The Black Cauldron, in third grade. She is the author of River of Crows (a 2023 international Wishing Shelf Book Awards Silver Medal Winner and a 2023 Canadian Book Club Awards finalist), Mirror of Wolves, and Stone of Serpents.

N.P. has degrees in Cognitive Science, Education, and Interactive Media Design, and when she is not creating worlds, or waging losing battles against the voracious pests that insist on eating her garden, she works as a web designer and UX/UI specialist. She lives in Ottawa, Canada with her two awesome kids and a very lazy cat. She enjoys talking to the neighbourhood crows (most days) but wishes they would stop nagging her about not having finished their stories yet.

Long Bio

N.P. Thompson lives in Ottawa, Canada, with her two awesome kids and a very lazy cat. When she's not building web things you can either find her wrangling plot bunnies or binge-watching episodes of Doctor Who and Babylon 5. She enjoys talking to the neighbourhood crows (most days), but wishes they would stop nagging her about not having finished their stories yet.
